

Andrew Witkin's simal-, simil-, simul-, -semble
Theodore Art
56 Bogart Street, Bushwick, Brooklyn

Theodore Art's first show in their new first floor space at 56 Bogart (formerly the Bogart Salon space), this is a clean and nicely curated show of Andrew Witkin's work. Conceptually minded, Witkin's show plays with series of fives, and the display includes a recently discovered drypoint series (in 5 states, of course) from the early 20th century by Henri Héran. This curated inventory of thoughts and ideas include five Victorian doors (in various states of being stripped down) and long lists of ruminations from the artist.
