Art This Week: Cuban Abstraction and Tender Collaboration

That dear old picture on the wall

Opening Friday, September 6 at Theodore:Art, 6 pm to 8 pm. On view through October 20.

Though from the title this may seem like a solo exhibition by the artist Andrew Witkin, a closer look reveals many others had their hands in the creation of his multifaceted installation, on view starting Friday at Bushwick's Theodore:Art. The installation is dynamic, subverting the typical gallery wall setup by adding additional beams, surfaces, and more made from unpainted wood. Decorating all these walls and surfaces (custom-built or otherwise) are essentially medleys of data, media, and texture: newspaper clippings, fabric, and photos, creating a collage of sorts that's waiting to be discovered.
